Goethals 'Sells' I. C. Canal to Pt. Arthur

HERE'S STORM CENTER IN GERMAN SECESSION MOVE

CARGO FIGURES TO DECIDE AID

Says Port Arthur Furnished Best Data of Survey

OPTIMISTIC ON PROJECT

Reminds Audience Need for Waterway Must Be Proved

Major General George W. Goethals sold the intracoastal canal project to an audience of some 200 shipping and marine men of Port Arthur last night in an address to the meeting on the mezzanine floor of the Chamber of Commerce. In a brief speech the noted engineer presented his case to the jury of shippers and those interested in marine transportation and received a verdict of "hearty support and co-operation."

The early history of the canal project, from the time it was but a brain child of Eastern Texas and Louisiana interests to its present advanced stage was reviewed by George Bliss, chairman of the meeting. After the short recital of canal facts, Bliss presented General Goethals to those present.

What Must Be Shown.

Without any display of rhetoric the engineer plunged immediately into his subject.

In part he said:

"What I'm trying to do in the interests of the intracoastal canal is gather data to present to the governing board of engineers in Washington, so that the committee of the house on rivers and harbors may receive a favorable report from the engineering body.

It is essential that I gather every item of such data in order to convince the authorities of the feasibility and necessity of constructing such a canal as is proposed."

General Goethals explained the various steps in the project went through from its inception to the final passage of the act which would appropriate an amount of money for the project. He said that the project had been turned over to Col. Hoffman, divisional engineering chief of this district and the colonel's report had been favorable. From that he traced the plan through the various steps before it would land before the rivers and harbors committee.

It is essential that I gather every item of such data in order to convince the authorities of the feasibility and necessity of constructing such a canal as is proposed."

Progressive senators were aroused by reports that Kellogg would be given the London post, provided the British government found him acceptable.

LaFollette Leads Fight.

Contrary to the tradition of "once year, always a senator," which grieves the ways for the nominations of ex-senators, the confirmation of Kellogg's appointment will be fought tooth and nail by the progressive group led by LaFollette of Wisconsin.

Senators Wheeler of Montana and Frazer of North Dakota today announced their intention of opposing Kellogg's confirmation in the senate.

Wheeler was elected as a democrat and Frazer as a republican, but both drew their strength from the non-partisan league and both follow the LaFollette banner.

How to Furnish the Doll Bedroom

China-Doll says that an unhappy, cluttered-up bedroom must be finished with some color makes her porcelain head the edges overcast in threads the color of your wallpaper. Put tiny iron rusts, or oxidizes, at a very low temperature. In animal life, oxidation takes place and the heat produced gives the animal the energy to move about. When oxidation takes place so rapidly that the flame is produced, it is commonly called burning. The heat energy necessary to draw trains, drive cars with space below for the air to supply oxygen, and keep our houses come up, supplying oxygen, and bodies warm, all comes from candle flames. Remove the sticks in the form of a village for an example, and the burning took place, but it in a sleeping porch and a sun parlor would be too shy to boast.

In the preceding articles you learned how to make a cardboard doll bed, dresser, desk and chair of white material braided with the colored stripes in them if you wish.

Now you will want to take a hat same color as was used for the wall-box and make your room. Tip the paper. Make a continuous braid box end with the opening at the putting in a new strip when an old front; paper and carpet it in suit-one comes near its end. Then coil able colors, and place the furniture the braid around and sew, keeping in an arrangement that balances, the rug flat.

Here are suggestions for color. You will be proud to exhibit the combinations: Yellow wallpaper, doll room to your friends when it brown floor covering, yellow and is complete. If you also made the white curtains. Light green walls, doll living room, described some gray floor, pink and white curtains, weeks ago, you will surely need to Bright blue walls, a softer blue give a dollhouse-warming, with carpet, blue and white curtains, music, refreshments, 'n everything!

If you will practice these diligently it will be easy to originate other positions as you need them. Don't forget that you have two hands yourself, and can always use them as models. Pose your hands in various positions and draw them carefully. Fingers 1 and 3 are about the same length, while finger 2 is for tips on drawing them next week.

IN SNOOPYQUOP LAND WHERE NOTHING SEEMS QUOD

As you can see, this is a scientific bout, the fight of the seasons, the old story of summer vs. winter. Joe claims he'll breeze through the match easily; Ben says he'll shake it too hot for Joe. Both boys seem light-headed to us, but we're glad to notice they have both had their irons to advantage. To make a long story short, and to end your suspense, we'll say that Joe hit Benach in the chest protector, instantly breaking his fuse out. Thus Benach fell over onto Joe, causing a short circuit, so the fight was called off on account of darkness. Tricky and?

SAFE EXPERIMENTS IN SCIENCE

The everyday workings of the world in large part depend upon scientific principles for their operation. This does not necessarily mean that the principles are complicated. In fact, some are so simple that boys and girls may easily understand them by experimenting with them. The articles here tell you how to perform some safe experiments with materials you may find in your own home.

Oxidation and Burning

Part of the air which we breathe is composed of an element called oxygen. When oxygen unites with other substances, a compound substance is formed. This uniting is the burning (rapid oxidation) of carbon.

Iron rusts, or oxidizes, at a very low temperature. In animal life, oxidation takes place and the heat produced gives the animal the energy to move about.

where the burning is complete, for the oxygen of the air has free access to the flame. In the dark portion represented in the diagram, there is no burning, for the oxygen is united in the outer portion of the flame before it reaches the inside. In the luminous (dotted) portion of the flame, the burning is only partly complete. The whole flame is surrounded by a thin mantle you can hardly see.

To prove that the inner part of the flame, black in the picture, does not burn, press a piece of paper quickly on it until it almost touches the wick. You will find there is a "Mine has a sun parlor, so it's best!

Port Arthur Should Win Despite Odds Favorite

Return of Captain Crow and Walker Strengthen Locals

Special Cheering Crew Occupying Reserved Section To Root High School On To Victory Over Invading Team Favored Odds

BY BILL ARCHER

MATCHED against the toughest foe they will probably meet this season, exclusive of the clash against Beaumont, Port Arthur's Yellow Jackets prepared this morning to face the speedy Houston Heights contingent this afternoon at 3 o'clock on Franklin Field. A mammoth crowd of fans is expected to swarm the high school stadium to witness the fray.

Undefeated and with their goal line yet uncrossed by any high school team in the state, Houston Heights, bigger, more experienced and with a heavier backfield than the local contingent claims, will enter the field this afternoon slightly the favorites in the betting over Port Arthur.

Port Arthur's goal has not been crossed either, and there are many in Port Arthur who have confidence in the Yellow Jackets annexing another victory this afternoon. Last season, on Houston Heights grounds, the two clubs battled to a 0-to-0 tie; Port Arthur High was weaker then now, and did not claim the sterling punter that is manifest in Iglesias, whose dependable toe is expected to count much in the game this afternoon.

With the game on home grounds, with Captain Buzzard Crow and Walker, first string center, back in the line, Port Arthur should win over the Houston Heights eleven. The score will probably not reach the realms of lopsided finishes; it will in all probability be a small margin for either team, but with the local line holding it has held against South Park College, South Park High, Dayton and Sour Lake, and with Captain Crow getting over the ground as he usually does, the locals playing on a field they are very familiar with have a slight advantage to win, despite the fact that many doopers have favored the visiting crew in the betting.

A special cheering section of 500 students, known as "The 400," and the 45-piece band of the high school will occupy a specially reserved section of the cheering stands this afternoon to root the high school boys on to victory. The 400 held its final pep session at the high school yesterday noon, with A. M. Culpepper, director, coaching them for a period of 45 minutes.

It had been planned to have a special drill section of 60 high school boys, decked out in yellow-jackets and hats, symbolic of the next Port Arthur High represents on the gridiron to parade and drill between halves this afternoon, but due to failure of the uniforms to arrive, this phase of the cheering lines will be omitted. The uniforms are expected for Port Arthur's next game.

"Bent Houston" has been chosen as the slogan of every yell this afternoon, and will be heard by the fans in numerous pep yells as play goes on.

The following lineup will probably be started against the invaders this afternoon:

All European Teams Have Been Strengthened

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

United Press Staff Correspondent, NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Warning against over-confidence, resulting from the unbroken string of victories achieved in the past, was voiced generally at the first real meeting of the American Olympic committee.

Colonel Robert M. Thompson and Major General Allen, who recently returned from Europe, warned the committee members that the American team would have the biggest kind of a job on its hands to come out of the Paris games next summer as the world's champion.

It was pointed out that all the European teams had been greatly strengthened and that America's strongest team would be needed to keep the colors of the United States in its episcopate place at the top of the scoring flag pole.

The committee did not seem to be concerned over the necessity of raising $300,000 which will be necessary to finance the team. It was pointed out that about $150,000 can be raised by selling extra transportation on the liner America, which has been chartered to take the team to Paris. The rest of the money will be raised by sectional members of the A. O. C.

Better and more thorough plans were adopted for the selection of the teams in which the idea is followed of giving everyone eligible a chance to make the team. Trials will be conducted by the Army and Navy departments, the A. A. U., the National Collegiate Association and the Intercollegiate Association and the winners of the trial events will be sent to the Harvard Stadium to compete on the final trials on June 13 and 14.

RICE FACES LOSS

HOUSTON, Oct. 27.—Mines the help of Ulrich, star linemen who quit school last week, the Rice Owls will take on the Southwestern Texas Normal here this afternoon. Though the teachers are rated a second class team, a tough battle is looked for.

TWO KIDS HOLD BIGGEST TITLES

But Golf, Tennis Champs Want Matches

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Two school kids, Helen Wills, the 17-year-old newly crowned queen of the tennis world, and Bobby Jones, the 21-year-old king of all golfdom, hold the most popular and most sought-for titles in the United States and the world.

There is much to be liked in the efforts of these two and more to be gained in their dogged attempts to gain these coveted crowns.

Their progressions to the respective thrones has almost been automatic, a gradual, consistent step by step. Miss Wills first attracted attention in the sporting world back in 1921 when she captured the national girls' championship, repeating the following year.

Jones' first important victory was in the southern amateur in 1917, and his like, Miss Wills, repeated in this event the next year.

It was about six years ago that Miss Wills took to the game and about the same length of time that Bobby became so interested in golf. Since that time they have both been on the threshold of untiring fame, only to have fate at varying instances turn them back when victory seemed almost certain.

Miss Wills was nosed out of the national women's event last year, the first time she had entered, by the woman she recently defeated, Mrs. Mallory. At that time, however, she won the national doubles with Mrs. Zanderstrom.

Dallas Scene of Gala Parade as Mustangs Return

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 27.—Six hundred students of Southern Methodist University who had to stay at home for the S. M. U.A. and M. game at College Station yesterday when R. M. U. won 10 to 0, staged a mammoth parade in the downtown section last night which lasted until the train arrived with the victorious team at 1 a. m.

Dormitories were deserted as the students came to the station in special street cars.

HUSTON SEEKS RACING BOATS

Leaves for Shreveport in Quest of Drivers

ROY Huston departed last night for Shreveport, La., where he will spend the weekend negotiating with dirt track drivers for the opening event of the East Texas speedway under his management. Huston contemplates the signing up of at least three and possibly additional drivers for the races scheduled for fair week, Sunday, November 4.

The departure of Huston follows announcement yesterday to the effect that the local driver and C. E. Bowe of Beaumont had purchased control interest in the race track.

BACK TO NATURE AND LIVE LONGER

GREENFIELD, Ind., Oct. 27.—Modern Americans eat from tin cans, paper cartons and patent flour sacks and live to be about thirty five years old, while our primeval ancestors ate from the hand of nature and lived to be 1000 years old," declared Rev. R. B. Hyten, speaking here.

Less meat and more hard physical labor was the program he means for those who wish to live longer lives.

FANS SAY IRON MAN 'ROBBED'

Witnesses Give Local Boy Ring Victory

"Robbed" of the referee's decision, although he gave his opponent a decided drubbing, Tom Brant, 125-pound boxer of this city, gave Tommy Harris of Louisiana a clean-cut licking in Baton Rouge Thursday night, word brought back here by prize-fight fans announced.

Brant weighed in at 128, and the fight, scheduled as the main go, went the full limit of 19 rounds, the Port Arthur pug leading the scrap all the way to his opponent, driving considerate in cutting and boxing at random throughout the contest. Brant, the returning "Iron Man" never received a blow in the face during the match, but pusted Tommy as he chose all over the body and head.

The referee says Harris, the driver and the crowd gave the referee the "mercy" raspberry, one fan declared, "Brant ought to have had the fight by big odds. He won it."

Brant, who is one of J. E. ONeil's protégés, occupies the same training stable with Joe Garrett, and is a coming "ringer." Through his ability to simulate blows and stand up under the toughest kind of punishment, he has won the popular monicker among fight fans of the "iron man," and Brant is living up to the title.

Brant has been the veteran of some 50 odd fights, of which he has lost five, battled three draws, won 15 via the "knocked-out" method, and been the recipient of 39 decisions.

Non-members who are tennis fans are urged to line up with the Country club and take advantage of the new tennis courts which are rapidly being rounded into shape. Mr. Gunter asserts that the courts will be made among the best clay grounds in the country, and will be kept in condition for the playing fraternity.

Notre Dame's Great Coach Gets Out and Works With His Men

Announcement was made here this morning by A. A. Gunter chairman of the tennis committee of the Country Club, that the club's tennis courts are in excellent condition and will be placed in use today and tomorrow by numerous exponents of the game.

All members of the club who have played tennis are urged by Gunter to turn out this afternoon and Sunday to liven up the club.

Two of the great field cool kickers, no doubt were Eddie Eckersall of Chicago and Charley Brickley of Harvard. They were drop and place kick experts du jour. Eckersall used to drop for the most part and Brickley, the place-kicker. Both was dangerous anywhere within the 50-yard line.

"Eddie" in his day ranked as the best drop-kicker in the game. And though that was nearly 20 years ago it is not believed that anyone has since developed who could outdo the Chicagoan at his favorite end of the pastime. Twice during his football career he kicked five field goals in a game; once at Wisconsin and once against Nebraska.

Brickley, at place-kicking likewise stood near high. Time and again he carried the Crimson to victory, almost single-handed, through his ability to bore them across the bar. He was a feared man by all opponents whenever Harvard had the ball in the foe's territory. Calm, cool and cool, Brickley was a nimble wire from the field. His best work in this respect was done against Yale, when the Crimson eleven can up 15 points, all to be by Brickley's touch.

Earl Spradling, old Brown quarterback, was also a cool field goal kicker, as was Charlie Parent, Pennell, Capron, Minnesota; Cliff Sparks, Michigan; Cleo Hart, Ohio State and so on. But none could compare with Eckersall and Brickley for consistency.

Knute Rockne of Notre Dame is the leading coach of the game.

His teams have won 46 and tied two of 51 contests during the last five years of contact with Nebraska, Army, Iowa, Georgia Tech, Purdue, Northwestern, Carnegie Tech, Indiana and other strong eleves.

During the period he produced Gipp, Brandy, Custer, Mohrhardt, Kite, Shaw, the DeGrees, Bergman and Anderson and other big stars. Gipp is one of the game's immortals. In 1921, 10 of his 11 regulars won berths on various All-American teams.

"Just likes to preach so he does," he sniffed

Chuckle Chicken had grown up—in his own estimation!

That means that he thought, like many other young people, that he knew more than his elders.

When Mister Cockadoodle Rooster told him that the big brown bird circling around so gracefully in the sky right over Squeaky-Moo Land was a Johnson-hawk, waiting for a chance to pounce down and carry off a nice fat young chicken for his dinner—

Chuckle just went on picking up bugs with his beak as though he didn't hear him at all.

"Just likes to preach so he does," he sniffed when Mister Rooster had gone. "As though I didn't know how to take care of myself!"

"What's that you're muttering about?" asked a voice right beside him.

Chuckle jumped as though he'd heard a gun. "Wh—who is it?" he gasped.

Mister Dodger, the good fairy of Squeaky-Moo Land, laughed.

"I was just telling my friends, Nancy and Nick here, that you were not really as brave as you pretended to be," said he. "And you aren't either, or you wouldn't have jumped so just now. I heard what Mister Rooster said to you and if you're a wise fellow you'll take his advice and not wander away so far all by yourself. Suppose you'd get away over there in the buckwheat field some time and old Hunter Hawk would make a swoop down and grab you—there wouldn't be anybody near to lift a finger to save you. You'd better stay 'round where the others are."

But this advice only made Chuckie worse than ever, particularly as he did not like to be told that he was afraid.

"Pooh!" he said. "I guess I'm no baby! I'm not going to be tied to anybody's apron strings, and I shall go where I please."

And away went Chuckie, straight for the distant buckwheat field.

But it wasn't five minutes until Mister Dodger and his helpers heard a faint call for help.

"There! I knew it!" cried the fairyman. "Chuckle doesn't deserve it, but we'll have to save him, Run."

They arrived just in time, for Hunter Hawk already had a tight hold on Chuckie and was just about to fly away.

"Now, Chuckie," said Minter Dodger kindly, a minute later when Hunter Hawk had been driven off and the little chicken lay weak and frightened on the ground. "You don't need a lecture. But I think you've learned a lesson. After this you'd better listen to wiser heads than yours."

CHILD'S STORY
HUMAN RACE

CHAPTER 18

Dogs Help Men Hunt

The dogs first tamed by man looked very much like wolves. They grew to be large. They were fierce toward all creatures—except the ones who had tamed and fed them. They learned to love the families which took care of them. They learned to "pay back" the kindness of men.

How did they pay back? For one thing, they sometimes helped in hunting. They could run much faster than a man, and often they could catch rabbits and bring them back to their master. The picture today represents a dog bringing a rabbit to a Stone Age hunter. Besides catching rabbits and other small game, dogs could help the hunter in another way. They could catch the scent of such animals as bears, lions and mammoths, and could let their masters know of the danger by yelping or whimpering.

Above all, the dog became a friend of the children. He played with them in meadow and forest. He was always ready to give his life, if necessary, to defend them.

During the tens of thousands of years dogs have changed a great deal in appearance. Nowadays only a few kinds of dogs look like wolves.

The nature of dogs, however, has remained much the same. They are still faithful to those who good to them. Many times dogs have saved human beings from death by drowning.

There are some queer facts in the history of man's treatment of dogs. In ancient Egypt, people are said to have shaved themselves when a dog died.

This was a sign of mourning.

There is a still more amusing thing in the dog's history. Several thousand years ago, the people of Ethiopia (a country south of Egypt) elected a dog as their "king". The dog was given officers and guards and was kept in great state. When it frowned upon the officers, it was supposed to be pleased with what they did. When it growled, it was supposed to be angry over the way things were going.

That was very foolish, of course.

Those Ethiopians couldn't have had much common sense to expect a dog to rule them!

Although it knows nothing about ruling, a dog knows a great deal about being a true friend.

Here we see a wolflike dog performing one of the many services to its master, a man of the stone age.

SAYS RICH HUSBAND

KICKED HER FROM BED

Detroit, Oct. 27.—Kicking her out of bed was the favorite nocturnal pastime of John Holmes, wealthy realtor and owner of the Holmes building on Broadway, his wife, Alice, testified in Judge Harry J. Dingeman's court. She seeks a divorce.

Frequently he accused her of putting ground glass in his food and poison in his coffee with intent to kill him. Mrs. Holmes said, "He accused me of this to my friends and made me ill. I will not kill a dumb animal, much less my husband," she testified.

IT is probable that during the coming winter steps will be taken to have the state of South Dakota open a monument to the memory of this great Indian woman on the appropriate site of her grave.

BUILT IN 1812

The expedition reached its destination in August, 1812, and Fort Manuel—named in honor of Manuel Lisa—was started and was completed on November 9 of that year. Col. Wm. C. Luttrell, who was Manuel Lisa's stepson, left a diary and in this he recorded the death of the "Bird Woman" of diaphtheria, on December 20, 1812.

To the fort, it is revealed that on March 5, 1813, a band of hostile Sioux attacked Manuel and his men, killing fifteen of the men, and causing the fort to be abandoned. The war of 1812 with the British was on at this time, and British emissaries were inciting the Indians of the upper Missouri river to war against the few Americans who then were found in that region.

It is probable that during the coming winter steps will be taken to have the state of South Dakota open a monument to the memory of this great Indian woman on the appropriate site of her grave.

LETTER FROM MRS. MARY ALDEN PRESSCOTT TO PRISCILLA BRADFORD*MY DEAR PRISCILLA:

You cannot tell how lonely I have been since you left me for New York.

It is not good for an old woman like me to live alone and I am delighted to know that when you return you are going to bring whatever part of your goods and chattels you may desire and come over to my house or rather your house—and live with me until the book is closed. Today I made my will, my dear, and left you all my small possessions.

"I have often practiced drawing cats," mused Natalie. "I'll make one from black paper with a separate tail!"

Post the cat on the fence in Shady Lane, which is just inside the gate of your hat box. The owl and bat are for the polo of the Apple Line and you will find tomorrow. Color the cat's eyes green, and his mouth red, and the owl brown with a yellow bill.
